PROFILE

WELL BEING COACH · CREATION · CONCEPTION · WRITING · ARTISTIC DIRECTION · MANAGEMENT · DIRECTING · DESIGN · PRODUCTION · PHILANTHROPY

A graduate of Harvard University in Boston with honors, holding a BFA (Bachelor of Fine Arts) with specializations in life coaching, music and audiovisual arts, among other qualifications, Jerryline “Jerry” Diamond is a professional committed to artistic transmission through images.

Her career spans coaching, audiovisual, photographic and musical creation, work with young people and adult audiences, and independent production.

With a wealth of hands-on experience, including directing two documentaries and a reality TV show, and taking part in a wide range of shoots (music videos, television series, informational films, web series, commercials…) and major productions, she has developed a pedagogical approach centered on self-expression, cooperation, and telling the stories of local territories through the eyes of young people.

Through her production company, Magic Chemistry Productions, she designs and leads human-scale cultural projects, conceived as transformative experiences in which the image becomes at once a mirror, a springboard and a tool for social connection.
